

The King's Hunt

By Anna Kirschberg

Illustrated by James Keiaho

Book Summary

This title looks at a simple fantasy themed story about a king who demands to go for a hunt in the rain at night. Will his knight, Ted, be able to talk him out of a hunt? The text will introduce the reader to new consonant blends. Detailed and vibrant illustrations depict and help the text explain some basic story information about each page.

This book follows the Beanstalk Books (Letters & Sounds) Phase 4 progression and focuses on teaching blending and segmentation of adjacent consonant blends.

Reading the Text

Pages 2 and 3 – Explain where to begin reading, and ask the student to point to each word as you read aloud together. The main characters in this story are in a castle setting. The King demands to his knight, Ted, to take him for a hunt. It is night and it is raining. Discuss the setting and scene shown in the pictures.

Pages 4 and 5 – In the illustrations on these pages, Ted the knight, continues to raise his concerns about the rain and the wind to the King. What else is the King demanding now?

Pages 6 and 7 – Here, the King continues to demand the hunt. What does Ted say to the King?

Page 8 – The final page ends with Ted accepting the King's demands. Do you think that the King should listen to Ted? How do you know from the picture that Ted has taken the King's order?

Children can now read the book independently. At the end of the story, go over the text and illustrations again and discuss what is happening on each page.

Revisiting the Text

As a group, refer back to the table in the front inner cover and identify the words in the story that use some of the new consonant blends being taught in Phase 4. Identify as many new blends as you can in words in the text. For example, 'nt' in 'hunt'.

Revisit the common exception words in the text. How many times can you find the word 'you'? Notice the use of any different types of punctuation. Discuss these.
