

Milk and a Belt

Pat and Mat are deep in a dark forest with a rabbit. The rabbit gifts them carrots.

“Did you like the carrots?” asks Rabbit. Pat and Mat gulp. “We did,” said Pat. “Thank you, Rabbit,” said Pat and Mat.

“Now, the mist and the fog will set in. Let us go shelter in my den,” said Rabbit.

Milk and a Belt

“Wait, Rabbit. Pat and I are too big. We cannot fit in the den,” said Mat. The den is shut with a rock.

“Yes, this will be a hard task for us,” said Rabbit. Rabbit hops up. “Quick, I need milk and a belt,” said Rabbit. “Milk and a belt. Are you sure?” said Pat.

“Yes, a cup of milk will help me to think,” said Rabbit. “And the belt?” asks Mat. “The belt will help keep the den open for you,” said Rabbit.

The kids help Rabbit pull the rock with the belt. “See, now you can fit,” said Rabbit. “Yes, we can,” said Pat and Mat.
