

Bring Me a Skunk

Deep in the dark forest, Sam and Sid help a wizard. The wizard has set a goblin in a trap.

“Cast a spell on the goblin!” said Sam.
“Turn him into a toad!” said Sid. The goblin kicks and swings in the net.

A bolt of lightning hits the tree. The net drops. The goblin runs off into the scrub.

“No! What will we do?” said Sid. The wizard grunts and shrugs. “Too bad, the goblin is free now,” he said.

“Think quick, wizard. We cannot let him go,” said Sam. “I have run out of stunts,” said the wizard.

“Call for a skunk. A skunk will sniff him out in the scrub,” said Sam. “Stink, skunk, stomp, chunk. Bring me a skunk,” sings the wizard. The spell brings a skunk.

The little skunk blinks at the children. “What do we do next?” asks the wizard. Sam and Sid sniff the air. “Perhaps, this was not such a good plan,” said Sid and Sam.
