

Plums With a Spoon

“Og, come for lunch with us,” said Pip. “Are you sure?” said Og. Pip and Pat nod.

Plums With a Spoon

“Yes, we have loads of fresh, plump plums on the plum tree,” said Pat. “Well, I do like plums,” said Og.

Plums With a Spoon

Og puts down his lamp. He runs into the garden to the plum tree. There are loads of plums to pick.

Plums With a Spoon

Pat and Pip get a bucket and a ladder. Og gets a spoon. “What is the spoon for?” asks Pat.

Plums With a Spoon

“I pick my plums with a spoon,” said Og. “I do not like to frighten the plums. Picking with a spoon is softer on the plums,” he said.

Plums With a Spoon

Og creeps up the ladder. He picks the plums high up in the tree. “So, Og is right. Picking plums with a spoon is better,” said Pip.

Plums With a Spoon

“What will it be for lunch then?” asks Pat. “Plums on toast, with plum butter and plum jam. And do not forget the plum tart,” said Og. “Yum!” said Pat and Pip.

Plums With a Spoon

Plums With a Spoon

Plums With a Spoon

