

A Mammoth Mudslide

Sid and Ted sit above the pit, deep in the jungle. "That was close, Sid. I am glad we got out of that pit of snakes," said Ted.

A Mammoth
Mudslide

"Now, how do we get out of this jungle?" asks Sid. "We go north, that's what we do," said Ted.

A Mammoth
Mudslide

"This feels dark and creepy," whispers Sid. "Stick close to me," said Ted. A parrot squawks up high. A frog croaks. A spider scuttles by their feet.

A Mammoth
Mudslide

Ted gets out his compass from his pocket. "I hope this will help us get home," he said. The compass needle shows them true north. The boys start to head deeper into the jungle.

A Mammoth
Mudslide

"I hear something," said Ted. "It sounds like a river rushing. We must be close to getting out of the Amazon now," said Sid.

A Mammoth
Mudslide

A Mammoth Mudslide

The boys step out on a ledge. They look down on a massive mudslide. Mud is rushing down like a river. “What do we do now?” yells Sid. “We jump, that is what we do!” yells Ted. The boys hold hands, count to three and jump!

A Mammoth
Mudslide

Head to toe, the boys are covered with mud. “Now, that was a mammoth mudslide!” said Ted. Sid nods his head and grins.

A Mammoth
Mudslide

A Mammoth
Mudslide

