

Dinner is Served

“Hi Dad. What’s for dinner tonight?” asked Sam.
Sam has just arrived home from school.
“You tell me?” smiled her father.

Dinner is Served

“You mean I’m the cook?” said Sam.
Dad nodded. “That’s right. You are the cook tonight,” said Dad.

Dinner is Served

“I’m great at whipping up scrambled eggs,”
said Sam. “Then it shall be scrambled eggs,” said Dad. “Let me know if you need my help,”
he said. Dad went back to reading his book.

Dinner is Served

Sam walked into the kitchen. “I need eggs, butter and cream. I need a mixing bowl and a whisk,” said Sam.

Dinner is Served

Sam cracked the eggs into the mixing bowl.
She whisked the cream in. She melted the butter on the pan. Next, she poured in the egg mixture.

Dinner is Served

She lowered the heat. The eggs simmered slowly. She stirred the mixture gently with a wooden spoon.

Dinner is Served

“Something smells great,” said Dad. He entered the kitchen. Sam spooned out the scrambled eggs onto a plate for her father. “Dinner is served!”
she grinned. “Perfect,” said Dad.

Dinner is Served

Dinner is Served

Dinner is Served

